Calling all journalists and writers...

Would you like to share your story and have your writing published on an international scale, for students and schools to read worldwide?

World Student is a print and digital magazine aimed at students in international schools around the world – and predominantly those studying in COBIS and other British international schools.

The magazine features a mixture of news and information from COBIS; articles written by students themselves; international school graduates and alumni; teachers and educators and articles contributed by other organisations that serve the sector.

There is a regular focus on further education options and career opportunities and additional focus on pastoral care, student leadership and advice on school transition.

For more information, please visit: www.world-student.com.

The team at World Student magazine are looking for stories in any areas that interest you, however some key articles that World Student would like are:

- Calling COBIS Students! Have you taken part in a COBIS event or competition? Could you write a 250-word news story about your experience for the next issue of World Student?
- Calling Student Photographers! Would you like to share your photos and provide a guide on your country of study or where you live for World Student?
- World Student* News – It would be great to get lots of short 250-word news (or longer 800-1000 word) stories of your choice in the next issue.
- COBIS World Student Alumni Interview - Do you know any inspiring alumni that you would like to interview for an article in World Student? Could you research and find an alumnus/a that inspires you from another COBIS school to interview? COBIS invites you to find inspiring alumni from any COBIS school and interview them to produce an article for World Student.
